Asso. Prof. Tan Cheng-yong - Education inequality / Cruzanne Macalligan - Weekly audio - History of hair removal / Andrew Dembina - Chewday: food & drink happenings / Sadie Kaye - Sharp Pains: Ghost

主持人 : Noreen Mir

On Tuesday's 123 Show, we're talking about education inequality and the effects of family socioeconomic backgrounds on a students' learning outcomes with Tan Cheng-yong, an Associate Professor from the Faculty of Education at the University of Hong Kong. That's at 1:30. After 2, Cruzanne Macalligan is with us for our mid-week audio column. This week Cruz will talk about laying it here and will get plucky talking about the history of hair removal. After 2:30, Chewday reporter Andrew Dembina joins us to talk about world food and drink happenings. And finally, following on from her Mental Ideas series, Sadie Kaye (aka Miss Adventure) is back on the 123 Show with her skewed take on life and love under lockdown in the first episode of her new monthly humour column, "Sharp Pains". This one's called "Ghosts".
